

PURPOSE

Understanding Your Core Values

What Are Values?

Core Beliefs

Values are fundamental principles or beliefs that guide individuals' attitudes, decisions and actions, reflecting what is most important to them personally or professionally.

Cultural and Personal Identity

They often stem from cultural, societal or personal experiences and shape one's identity and priorities.

Decision-Making Compass

Values serve as a moral compass, providing a framework for ethical decision-making and behaviour in various situations

Foundation of Organisational Culture

In the workplace, values define organisational culture, influencing leadership styles, team dynamics, and how companies achieve their goals.

Understanding Your Core Values

8%

of people have challenges understanding and leveraging their values

98%

of people with high levels of
resilience understand and
leverage their values

91%

of people with average levels of
resilience understand and
leverage their values

50%

of people with low levels of
resilience understand and
leverage their values

Why Are Values Important?

Guiding Ethical Behaviour

Values provide a framework for making decisions and taking actions that align with personal or organisational principles, ensuring consistency and integrity.

Building Trust and Relationships

Shared values foster trust and mutual respect, strengthening collaboration and teamwork in both personal and professional environments.

Building Authenticity

Living in alignment with our values fosters self-esteem and self-respect.

Enhancing Organisational Culture

In workplaces, clearly defined and practiced values create a strong culture, reducing ethical conflicts and improving employee satisfaction and retention.

Driving Purpose and Motivation

Values give individuals and organisations a sense of purpose, driving motivation and focus towards meaningful goals.

Values Drive Behaviour and Decision Making

Values act as a moral compass to help us decide what's right and wrong, good or bad.

Everyone's values are different and where they draw a line in the sand may also differ from person to person.

What is wrong for one person may be acceptable for another.

It can be uncomfortable and a source of anxiety when personal and business values are not aligned.

"It's not hard to make decisions when you know what your values are."

Roy Disney

EXERCISE 2

Values-based Decision Making

Think of a situation in which your personal values were challenged at work.

-  What happened?
-  How did you feel?
-  What did you do?
-  How did your values impact your reaction?

Values-based Decision Making Best Practice

When faced with a decision and you are unsure how to proceed, follow this simple model, The Headline Test:

- 1 Is it legal?
- 2 Is it Ethical? Does it align with my values and the company's values?
- 3 How would it look if other people read about it in a news story?

The Headline Test

Value Conflict – Personal & Organisational

 'Value conflict' - a situation in which an individual's personal values—such as honesty, fairness, or social responsibility—clash with the organisational values or practices, which might prioritize profit, competitiveness, operational efficiency, brand protection etc.

Sources of Value Conflict

-  Unethical Practices: When organisations engage in behaviours that employees perceive as unethical.
-  Rigid Policies: When organisational policies prevent employees from acting in ways aligned with their values.
-  Leadership Behaviour: Leaders who model or enforce behaviours inconsistent with employees' values.

Approaches to Reducing Value Conflict

- Open communication about organisational values and their alignment with personal values during recruitment and onboarding.
- Creating opportunities for employees to express concerns and suggest changes.
- Cultivating ethical leadership and organisational practices.
- Encouraging value-based alignment in strategic decisions and workplace culture.

Impact of Value Conflict on Organisations

Value conflicts can affect organisational outcomes, such as:

- Lower productivity.
- Strained team dynamics.
- Damage to the organisation's reputation.

Impact of Value Conflict on Employees

Value conflict can lead to several negative outcomes:

- Reduced job satisfaction.
- Decreased organisational commitment.
- Increased stress, anxiety and burnout.
- Greater likelihood of employee turnover.

Best Practice

Navigating Value Conflicts

If you find yourself in the situation where your personal values are in conflict with organisational values, consider these strategies:

CLARIFY VALUES

Reflect on which values are non-negotiable for you and where compromises might be acceptable.

OPEN COMMUNICATION

Speak with leaders or HR about your concerns in a constructive way.

SEEK ALIGNMENT

Look for opportunities within the organization where your values align better, such as specific projects or roles.

EVALUATE OPTIONS

If the conflict is untenable, assess whether leaving the organization for one with better alignment is the best choice for your well-being.

BUILD RESILIENCE

Strengthen your ability to cope with stress through self-care, mindfulness, and seeking support.

Understanding Your Core Values

EXERCISE 1

Analyse Your Core Values

-  What are your most important 3-5 core values? Write them down.
-  How do these values help you navigate through your life?
-  How do these values help you when making decisions?

