

PERSEVERANCE | EXERCISE 1

One-month Challenge

For the One Month challenge, select something that you would like to achieve personally or professionally that could be achieved in one month. An area that is challenging but achievable and something that you may be putting off or have tried before but gave up along the way.

Start by defining the goal and break it down into milestones along the way.

Commit to working on it every day for 30 days irrespective of how you are feeling or other demands on your time.

Anticipate the challenges you may encounter along the way and think through some alternative strategies in advance.

Make sure that the relevant people in your support network are aware of what you are doing so that you can turn to them for support and encouragement if needed.

Reframe negative thoughts and go to your 'Success Bank' if things get tough to remind yourself of past successes.

Celebrate every milestone.

Keep a written record of progress and how you are feeling on a daily basis.

Learn from setbacks and apply the learnings going forward.

PERSEVERANCE | BEST PRACTICE

Developing Perseverance

This is an exercise to reflect on and document your past successes and to think about the abilities that you have that contributed to the success. You can refer to them in the future when you are asked to take on new tasks where you may be having doubts about your capabilities and chance of success.

Have a 'Growth Mindset' not a 'Fixed Mindset.'

Learn from failures – see failure as a learning opportunity.

Be Adaptive – be flexible to changing circumstances and conditions.

Don't lose sight of the goal.

Be prepared for the Inner Critic – by challenging unsubstantiated self-doubt and insecurity.

Focus your energy and resources on things in your control.

Have short and long-term goals and set benchmarks along the way to reward and encourage progress.

Build a Support Network to give encouragement and feedback when things get tough.

Prepare for challenges – things rarely go smoothly.

Take risks – you will expose yourself to more difficult situations and will learn to adapt and grow.
