

SELF-ESTEEM

Individual Exercises to Build Self-esteem

EXERCISE 1

Daily Affirmations

Why: Affirmations help rewire your brain to focus on positive self-beliefs.

How to Do It:

- Write down affirmations that resonate with you (e.g., "I am resilient," "I learn from my mistakes").
- Stand in front of a mirror, look into your eyes, and say each affirmation with conviction, twice daily (morning and evening).
- Adjust affirmations as your self-esteem grows, making them more specific to your goals.

EXERCISE 2

Gratitude Journaling

Why: Focusing on gratitude shifts attention from what's lacking to what's positive in your life.

How to Do It:

- Get a dedicated notebook for gratitude journaling.
- Every evening, list three things you're grateful for and why they matter to you.
- Reflect on your role in these positives (e.g., "I'm grateful for my promotion because it shows my hard work is paying off").

EXERCISE 3

Strength-Focused Reflection

Why: Recognising your strengths reinforces self-worth.

How to Do It:

- Make a list of personal strengths or skills (e.g., kindness, problem-solving, determination).
- For each strength, write an example where you demonstrated it effectively.
- Refer back to this list during challenging times.

Refer to the materials from the 'Understanding Strengths' sub-facet

EXERCISE 4

Set Achievable Goals

Why: Completing goals builds confidence in your abilities.

How to Do It:

- Choose one area to improve (e.g., fitness, career, relationships).
- Set a SMART goal: Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant, Time-bound.
- Break it into small steps (e.g., "Run 1 mile three times a week").
- Track your progress and celebrate milestones.

Refer to the materials from the 'Clear Goals' sub-facet

SELF-ESTEEM

Individual Exercises to Build Self-esteem

EXERCISE 5

Positive Visualisation

Why: Visualisation prepares your mind for success.

How to Do It:

- Find a quiet space where you won't be interrupted.
- Close your eyes and imagine a scenario where you feel confident and successful (e.g., acing a presentation, handling a tough conversation).
- Focus on the sensory details: What are you wearing? What do you see? How does it feel?
- Replay this visualisation daily to reinforce belief in your abilities.

EXERCISE 6

Practicing Assertiveness

Why: Assertiveness helps you communicate your needs while respecting others.

How to Do It:

- Identify a situation where you want to be more assertive.
- Write out what you want to say, ensuring it's clear, respectful, and specific.
- Practice in front of a mirror or with a trusted friend.
- Example: Instead of "You're always late," try, "I feel frustrated when we start late because it disrupts my schedule."

EXERCISE 7

Volunteer or Help Others

Why: Helping others fosters a sense of purpose and value.

How to Do It:

- Choose a cause you're passionate about (e.g., mentoring, animal shelters, community clean-ups).
- Dedicate consistent time to volunteering.
- Reflect on the impact you've made, noting how it aligns with your values and strengths.

EXERCISE 8

Reframe Negative Thoughts

Why: Replacing negative thoughts helps you view yourself more compassionately.

How to Do It:

- Notice when you're being self-critical (e.g., "I failed that task").
- Challenge the thought: Is it factual, or an opinion?
- Reframe it positively: "I made a mistake, but I learned how to improve."

Refer to the materials from the 'Positivity' sub-facet

SELF-ESTEEM

Individual Exercises to Build Self-esteem

EXERCISE 9

Physical Exercise or Yoga

Why: Exercise boosts mood and creates a sense of accomplishment.

How to Do It:

- Choose an activity you enjoy (e.g., walking, dancing, swimming).
- Set realistic goals (e.g. 30 minutes, 3 times a week).
- For yoga, focus on beginner-friendly poses and combine them with deep breathing.

EXERCISE 10

Social Connections

Why: Positive relationships reinforce your sense of belonging and worth.

How to Do It:

- Make time for supportive friends or family members who make you feel valued.
- Set boundaries with people who drain your energy or undermine your confidence.
- Consider joining groups that align with your interests, like hobby clubs or support networks.