

Separating Work From Home

Group Exercise

MAKE A COMMITMENT TO CHANGE A HABIT FOR EVER

SET BOUNDARIES

CLEAR WORKING HOURS

MANAGE STRESS

KEEP TO A ROUTINE

OPTIMISE YOUR WORKFLOW

CREATE A DEDICATED WORKSPACE

SCHEDULE REGULAR BREAKS AND ACTIVITIES

SWITCH OFF

EXERCISE

TEAM TENETS | WORKING FROM HOME

- As a team, discuss and agree upon 3 – 5 key tenets that will become the 'norm'.
- Use the best practice input as a starting point.
- Publish the tenets and review them on a regular basis.
- What's working, what do we need to change?
- As a leader, how will you role model these behaviours?

Taking Control

There are steps you can take to separate work from home

SET BOUNDARIES

Do this early on with employers, balance willingness to help with establishing personal boundaries for a clear work-life separation.

CLEAR WORKING HOURS

Agree and adhere to working hours with your Team and Manager.

MANAGE STRESS

Speak up when workload and expectations are excessive, resist repeated after-hours requests, and propose solutions for managing urgent work.

KEEP TO A ROUTINE

Fixed working times and a schedule will help your mind distinguish between work and personal time.

OPTIMISE YOUR WORKFLOW

Use digital tools to maximise your efficiency, such as RescueTime for Time Tracking and Sunsama for Time-Blocking.

CREATE A DEDICATED WORKSPACE

Physical separation will help minimise distractions, improve focus and productivity, and enable you to switch off at the end of the day.

SCHEDULE REGULAR BREAKS AND ACTIVITIES

Have regular breaks to recharge and interact with others. Use activities such as walks or gym sessions to replace commuting giving clear separation between work and home.

SWITCH OFF

When the working day is over, turn off notifications and avoid sending or checking emails, messages or phone calls.